

Customer Proprietary Network Information (CPNI)

Federal Communications Commission (FCC) rules govern the use and disclosure of Customer Proprietary Network Information (CPNI). Establishing a password and email address of record for your Nemont account will help protect your privacy and prevent identity theft. In order to comply with FCC rules regarding customer call detail and account information, Nemont must verify the identity of the requesting party. When visiting our offices, you may present a valid picture ID. Over the phone, you may verify your identity by providing a pre-established password or answering the security questions. Nemont can also contact you directly at your phone number, postal or electronic address of record. Although it may seem an inconvenience, these precautions are for your protection.

This form will establish a password, back-up questions and electronic address of record for purposes relating to CPNI.
